TOTAL 152

From the above it will be seen that our canvassing team is selling over 30 shares per week. At this rate it will take 34 weeks to complete our goal — 1,000 shares. It is a tremendous task. Canvassers need all the assistance they can get. Whether you are an old or new shareholder, won't you get into the campaign by phoning your favorite canvasser and giving him or her any leads you have.

Here is the financial picture:
Cost of land $ 10,000
Cost of building Centre 105,000
Cost of furnishing 25,000
TOTAL COST $140,000

We have (March 1, '64) 95,000

Yes, we need $45,000 to pay for the Centre in 1964. If we sell 1,000 shares netting us $50,000, we will have a safety margin of $5,000.

If you buy your share now, it will benefit you . . .

1. Because you will be making YOUR CONTRIBUTION felt in the COMMUNITY.

2. Because shares will be WORTH $60.00 after the official opening in May, 1964.

3. Because YOU will be included in the "HONOR ROLL" if you buy your share before the Grand Opening in May. A beautiful leather-bound book will contain all the names listed alphabetically — will you and your family be on the HONOR ROLL?

4. Because you are helping to fulfill a dream of many SCANDINAVIAN - CANADIANS to have a HOME of their own.

5. Because YOU will be proud to be part of the fastest-growing COMMUNITY ORGANIZATION in Edmonton.

6. Because YOU will be helping to create a SOCIAL AND CULTURAL CENTER where you and YOUR FAMILY may enjoy yourselves in a wholesome and beautiful surrounding.

7. Because, as the Hon. Raymond Reiersen said at the Sod-Turning Ceremony, YOU will be reaping DIVIDENDS of such intrinsic value that they cannot be measured in dollars and cents.

8. Because YOU will receive regularly the ever - popular SCANDINAVIAN CENTRE NEWS.

9. Because it will entitle YOU to participate in all future Chartered Flights to Scandinavia — at half the cost of ordinary fares.

We persuade others by being in earnest ourselves. —Hazlitt.

EDITORIAL

FROM THE PRESIDENT'S DESK . . .
BY S. A. SORENSON

THE SHARE-SELLING CAMPAIGN . . .

As a director of the present all-out effort to raise enough money to pay for the Centre, I am indeed pleased with the results of the first five weeks of the campaign . . . 152 shares . . . $6,615.00. At the present rate however, it would take most of 1964 to reach our goal of 1,000 shares or $45,000. Can we maintain the pace for so long?

Wouldn't it be wonderful if we could get out and do the means that every shareholder must assist the 50 canvassers means that each canvasser must sell those 20 shares! It job NOW, so that we could all enjoy a summer holiday. It in the tremendous task! It can be done! Shall we all pull together, then, and do the job in the next weeks before the official opening of the Centre, expected to be in June?

I am proud of the canvassing team that you see listed elsewhere in this paper. The Centre is proud of them, and the tremendous task they have set out to do. Readers of this paper, won't you help them. Let's get enthusiastic. Let's go over the top!

As I write these lines the shares continue to land on my desk. I am sure that by the time this paper goes to press we will have reached the 200 mark (May 1).

If you wish to know how the campaign is going, just phone any one of the 50 canvassers; they receive weekly up-to-the-minute reports of the campaign.

Augustana Celebrates 35th Anniversary

Augustana Lutheran Church has designated Sunday, May 31st as "Anniversary Day." The congregation was organized February 28, 1929 with twenty-two charter members. Only four of these original members are still living today, thirty-five years later. Several special events have been planned to celebrate this anniversary.

11:00 a.m. Morning Worship
5:30 p.m. Fellowship Supper
7:30 p.m. Vespers

The Fellowship Supper is pot-luck and is open to all friends of the congregation. Mr. Herbert Eriksson has been invited to be guest preacher at the evening service. Mr. Eriksson has been attending the Lutheran Seminary in Saskatoon for the past three years and graduates this spring. He was a member of Augustana for over twenty years, holding the position of treasurer for much of accepted a call to become pastor this time. Mr. Eriksson has of the Inglis - Russell parish in Manitoba.

Two other special services will be held at Augustana during the month of May. Thursday, May 7th marks the Festival of the Ascension of our Lord. In most Protestant churches Ascension Day, which always occurs on a weekday, has become a forgotten festival of the church year. The Ascension Day Worship service at Augustana will be held at 8 p.m. this year.

On Wednesday, May 27th three men will be ordained into the ministry service at Augustana. This Service of Ordination will be conducted during the annual convention of the Western Canada Synod of the Lutheran Church in America. Mr. Herbert Eriksson, a former member of Augustana, is one of the men to be ordained. The other candidates are Mr. Richard Peterson, who has been called to the Wainwright - Czar - Hughenden parish, and Mr. Garnet Leach, who has accepted a call to the Markinch - Lipton parish in Saskatchewan. The ordination service will commence at 8 p.m.

Final Display And Awards Night

The end of the winter season of Dania Gymnastic Club is fast approaching. However, before we close down the gymnastics for this year, a final display and awards night will be held on May 4 at 7:30 p.m., at Oliver School.

This will be the chance for all parents to see what their children have accomplished during the year. We also strongly urge everyone interested to attend this display to see for themselves and decide to join next year.

Of special interest will be a demonstration of jazz ballet, a recent development in rhythmic gymnastics, which has exciting possibilities and should interest a lot of young people.

Refreshments will be served, and the charge is 50c per person. Everybody is welcome.

BUFORD BY-LINE

It was a big thrill for Buford Lodge members to be able to greet Frank and Signe Carlson of Kelowna at their last meeting. The Carlsons had been visiting relatives and friends in the Buford district, and also their daughter at Cold Lake, before returning to Kelowna.

Members were also very happy to have with them District Master Margaret Eliasson, Mr. Eliasson, and District Secretary Eric Engvall and Mrs. Engvall.

Four new members were initiated at the last meeting: Clair and Alice Evanson and George and Doris Modin.

Recently returned from a fine restful holiday at Banff Hot Springs were Harry and Jurdis Nacuk of Thorsby.

Gust and Hilda Modin are back after holidaying at the coast recently.

On March 28th Buford played hosts at a Bonspiel including Lodges Skandia and Nordstjarnan at Calmar Curling Rink. This proved very enjoyable for everyone, even non-curlers who just came to watch. Hot stew, pie and coffee satisfied the appetites in between games, and at the end of the day the winners took home fine prizes.

Chuckles . . .

Belated Tears
Jimmy, aged five was sitting in the room with his mother, playing while she was reading a book. Suddenly he started crying bitterly.
"What are you crying for?" asked his mother.
"Yesterday I fell down from the chair and it hurt me," replied little Jimmy.
"But that was yesterday. Why are you crying today?"
"Because yesterday you were gone."

Animal Farm
Jimmie: "Everyone in our family is some kind of animal."
Johnnie: "Why do you say that?"
Jimmie: "Well, mother's a dear, the baby's a lamb, I'm the kid, and dad's the goat."

Easter Parade Featured . . .

The program for the Sons of Norway Spring Carnival held at the Masonic Temple opened with an Easter Parade. Six charming junior couples led by 4 year old Crystal Fleuty and 4 year old Curtis Svidal, marched on a stage that was beautifully decorated in a spring theme, of garden flowers and blossoming trees.

This was followed by a variety of interesting numbers given by the talented juniors. The Bukvi twins played a lively piano duet.

Debbie Waldal and Marilyn Sveen each played beautiful accordion selections. Sharon Sorenson, in keeping with the first day of spring, read a delightful poem, "Miss Spring Time." Curtis Svidal performing on stage for the first time, delighted the audience with his tap dance number. Inez Hovde, dressed as a "Beatle" performed an amusing comedy act. Evelyn Johnson and Debbie Mathes harmonized nicely in their song

Halden Reactor Delivers Steam To Industry

Norwegian Atomic Institute's experimental reactor at Halden, for the first time since it began operations in June, 1959, has delivered steam to the pulp and paper plant of Saugbrugsforeningen. Regular steam deliveries will start soon.

The world's only heavy boiling of an international research program water reactor, Halden is the object which, under a new 3-year agreement signed in Oslo last fall, will cost about Kr. 25 million. The production of steam is a bi-product of the extensive research program. With a maximum effect of 20,000 kw, the reactor can produce 25 tons of steam per hour, maintaining a temperature of 180 Centigrades at a pressure of 10 atmospheres.

United Kingdom Atomic Energy Authority recently announced its intention of joining the new research program at Halden, which is sponsored by OECD's European Nuclear Energy Agency. (See also "News of Norway," Vol. 20, No. 37)

Preview Tremendous Success!

Over 600 people attended the "On-site Preview" of the Scandinavian Centre on April 12th. On hand to welcome the visitors were the directors, the contractor, Mr. Rolf Volden, and the interior decorator, Mr. Knut Munnich, who were available to discuss various features of the building, now almost completed.

The guests were enthusiastic about the building, its design, its furnishings, its great possibilities for a variety of future activities.

Some of the comments one heard were:

- "What an impressive entrance."
- "I had no idea the dining room would be so large."
- "My, the color scheme will be attractive."
- "The proposed walnut panelling and brocade will create a fashionable and inviting foyer."
- "I'm sure going to tell my neighbor to buy a share, the mother's Danish, you know."
- "We can't wait till the opening and see it all completed."
- "It's taken 10 years to get this, but it's sure something to be proud of."
- "I think the salons, one each in style and name of one of the Scandinavian countries will be cozy and add something truly unique to the Centre."

"I'm going to pay up my share now."

And there were many more, all enthusiastic, all looking forward to the completion.

Of course, as with all houses, all buildings, there were arm-chair architects and builders who would do this or that differently, but this is good, for it shows the keen interest and desire for the best in our Scandinavian Centre.

The plans, hopes and dreams of many are now coming true, and those with other dreams see this as the first stage of the Scandinavian Centre. They envisage a recreation wing, including a multi-purpose gymnasium auditorium, a swimming pool and perhaps a curling rink . . . perhaps . . .

With the same perseverance that has brought us to the present milestone, most certainly the future development will be carried out.

Large Radio Telescope Soon Ready In Sweden

Northern Europe's largest radio telescope with a range of "several thousand million light years" for galactic research is now nearing completion at the observatory for radio astronomy at Rao, S. of Gothenburg. The electronic equipment is to be installed during the next six months. When going into full-time operation, August next, the telescope will carry out communication tests on behalf of the Scandinavian Telesatellite Committee.

New Fixing Procedure For Linen Textiles

A new method for treating and strengthening linen fabrics, Fibrafix, has been introduced on the Swedish market by Almedahls-Dalsjofors AB, Boras, manufacturers of linen, damask, tablecloths, towels, etc. This procedure stabilizes fibres of the linen weave, practically eliminating creasing and streaks caused by wear and tear. The life of a towel is increased by 25 per cent and a tablecloth by 50 per cent.

DANIA DOINGS

Our May Dance has been cancelled as the price of the Hall went up so much, that we simply can't afford to pay for it and as the Scandinavian Centre won't be ready by that time, we are calling off our May Dance. MORE ON SCANDINAVIA . . .

—by Kaj Hansen

There are many different ways of getting around in Scandinavia. The quickest is by air, the slowest walking on your hands. The most popular way of getting around in Denmark is by bicycle. You get your first bicycle at the age of two and never let it out of your sight for the rest of your life. In Copenhagen there are buses to carry people whose bicycles have blown a tire. During the so-called rush hour, buses are so overcrowded that you have to be the driver to be sure of getting on.

In Norway which, as previously indicated, consists of 12 million mountains, getting around is rather difficult. If you go by train, your view is somewhat hampered by the fact that you are always running through tunnels and only see daylight when you have to draw your breath. In the winter all trains and busses are snowed under and you travel on skis instead. Norwegians love skiing and they do it very well. If you should come across a guy with a broken arm and a sprained ankle in the snow at the foot of the mountain, he will invariably turn out to be a Dane.

In Sweden with its vast distances, you always travel by sleeper. As a result, no Swede has any idea of what his country really looks like, unless his grandfather, who lived in pre-railroad times, happens to have told him. Getting on and off the Stockholm buses is a continuous process, which means that every time three passengers get on at the rear, a similar number is pushed off at the front. Yes, no getting away from the fact the Scandinavians are different, and they are proud of it.

One of the highlights of the winter season in Scandinavia is Christmas, and in Denmark they claim to possess the real know-how, even if they don't have any snow. The Danes just love Christmas. It starts as early as October, when the papers bring their notices about it being high time to send your Christmas Mail to Alaska, China and Canada, if you want it to get there on time.

This forewarning will invariably make the Dane exclaim in mingled surprise and joyful expectation. "Funny, only three months till Christmas now." But Christmas Eve is without any doubt the busiest day in the year for the Danish housewife. All Danes have goose for dinner Christmas Eve (although people who don't like goose may eat duck, and people who don't like duck may eat roast pork). No other form for Christmas is known. And beside watching the goose in the oven, she has a thousand other things to do.

The Danish husband has a much easier time of it. He merely has to see that a "Julenæg" is hung out for the birds. A "Julenæg" is a sheaf of oats hung up in a tree so that the little feathered friends of the garden may know that it is Christmas too. Apart from that, he only has to knock a Christmas tree stand together in his workshop.

Now you can buy an excellent tree stand with your Christmas tree for a very small extra charge; but you wouldn't think of doing that! Here at last is an item where you can save money, and therefore the man of the house makes his own tree stand, even if it takes him the better part of the day, and the finished product will barely compare with his efforts.

In the afternoon the whole family goes to church. The church is handsomely decorated with candles and a Christmas tree is placed before the altar. Normally, Danes are not church-goers; apart from the annual Christmas visit, they rarely show up until it is time to be buried. The service starts with the singing of "Silent Night, Holy Night" and then the minister speaks a few words about Christmas. But the housewife can't keep her mind on the sermon. She keeps worrying about the goose in the oven at home—won't do if it gets too brown.

The children have an even harder time sitting still, and father can't help thinking about all the money Christmas is costing him, nor can he quite forget the unsuccessful Christmas tree stand. The minister is aware of his responsibility. Hundreds of brown geese are at stake and he makes his sermon a short one. Then everybody hurries home and stuff themselves with risengrød, which is a sort of rice pudding.

With this once-a-year dish, everybody drinks Christmas Beer, which is black and non-alcoholic. Next comes the goose and, being the head of the house, father has to carve it. This attempt is a dreadful sight, due to the fact that the Danish husband hasn't got a clue about how to prepare food; he only knows how to stuff himself!

After dinner the candles on the Christmas tree are lit. The tree has been decorated with garlands of red and white Danish flags, hearts made of glazed paper and filled with Christmas candy, crackers and Christmas bells. Thrilled at the sight of all the many candles, you sing while you all hold hands and walk around the tree.

At last the great moment has come when the first gifts are passed around. Father vanishes, and five minutes later there is a knock on the door. It opens and in comes Santa Claus wishing everyone "A Merry Christmas" (Glaedelig Jul) in a deep gruff voice. He asks the children if they have been good; they answer "Yes, Santa Claus." Then he asks if they will promise always to obey Mommy and Daddy.

The children lose their patience and say, "Aw, cut it out, Pop, and let's have those presents." The fact that he is recognized always knocks a little off father's Christmas Spirit. Danish fathers love playing Santa Claus. If they had their way, they would go around dressed as Santa Claus all year round.

After everyone has received their presents, the excitement cools off. While the children fight over their new toys, mother spends the rest of the evening in the kitchen washing dishes and father lies down to have a well deserved snooze, while his digestion tackles the goose.

Christmas day is celebrated with a king-size Christmas lunch with beer and snaps. During the remainder of the day you are only just capable of looking through the numerous Christmas cards from family, friends and acquaintances.

Boxing day is spent eating, sleeping and calling on the family to taste their Christmas baking and see if the other Christmas trees are as prettily decorated as your own. By now the Christmas spirit is slowly fading out and you pull the candles and the little red and white flags off the tree to keep for next year.

When mother has exchanged all her Christmas presents for things she needed more; when the children have smashed that electric train; and when father has smoked the last of his Christmas cigars, the Danish Christmas will be over.

Now, no one mentions the word Jul before some time in October, when the newspapers again bring their notice to the effect that it is now high time to send your Christmas mail to Alaska, China and Canada. Then the Dane will yell out with shining eyes, "Funny, only three months 'till Christmas." Yes, no getting away from it...the Danes love Christmas.

THORSTEIN THE BRAVE . . .

When Brian of the Dalagais
On Clontarf's crimson plain,
Let loose his Celtic chivalry;
And his Dalcassions, dread to see,
With broadswords cleaving murderously,
Fell on the frightened Dane.
Mad panic struck the Viking ranks.
And all their mighty host
Staggered and swayed in terror dire,
Like forests filled with ravaging fire,
And all broke seaward, son and sire,
To where their galleys tossed.
But when, like billows bursting bounds,
Swept on the Irish charge
Thorstein, the fearless son of Hall,
Disdained to fly, and fronting all
King Brian's troops — a rushing wall —
Knelt on the ocean's merge!
He knelt and tied his buskin-string,
As one whose spirit free,
Being made of more than mortal mould,
No fear could conquer, or strike cold,
And on the foe his glances bold,
Glittered full scornfully.
To whom spoke Kerthial, Thomond's chief,
With dripping axe in hand;
"How now, Oh Dane? And wilt not run
When all thy friends the conflict shun,
Like mists that fly the morning sun?
Why singly held the strand?"
And answered Thorstein, mockingly,
With smile as when the day,
One moment in a wintry gleam,
Floods Iceland's frozen plains that seem
Like seas of glass in evil dream —
One flash — then all is gray;
"Why should I run, eh chieftain brave?
My home lies far away,
Deep in the fog-shrouds of the north
Where red volcanoes shake the earth —
My speed would be of little worth.
I can't get there to-day!
The long day sleeps on the Polar seas,
And the long, long night will gloom
And weary of endless day and night,
I welcome death in the open fight,
Bold foeman, strike — my heart leaps light
To meet a warrior's doom!"
Then Kerthial's iron face relaxed,
And his Irish eyes grew soft,
As when on the heights of Galtee More,
The spring snows melt, and the torrents roar,
And mild-eyed daisies' cling all o'er,
The sun-crowned slopes aloft.
He reached a hand to the kneeling Dane,
And raised him to his side,
Then spoke: "On many a field I've stood
And felt the terrors of battle brood —
But, by St. Bride, and the Holy Road,
I clasp your hand with pride!
For I hold him more than warrior
Who stands up, scorning all,
When his comrades fly in panic dread
And earth is rocking beneath his tread —
Your life I spare, and bare my head,
To Thorstein, Son of Holl!"
Then hand in hand to the Irish camp
The two great heroes went;
And Thorstein tarried in Erin's land
First chief in Kerthial's own command —
Christ's yoke he took, and the fierce gods banned
For whom his youth was spent!
Honors and high renown were his,
And when he died, a moan
Went up from circling shore to shore,
And on men's souls fell a burden sore,
For death was lord of the world once more
When Thorstein's soul had flown.

—James B. Dollard, LL.D.

Swede First Over Pole In Single-Engined Plane

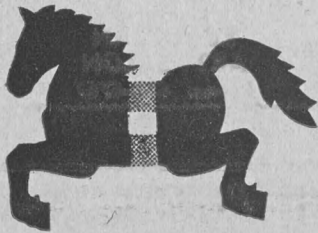

A young Swedish pilot, 21 year old Olle Ringstrand, was the first person in the world to complete a round trip flight across the North Pole in a single engined plane. In a Piper Comanche he flew from Bodo in Northern Norway to Anchorage, Alaska, in 21 hours, 15 minutes, and back in 26 hours.

FIRESIDE PHILOSOPHY

Each of us has in his heart a little try square, called a conscience, by which to test each thought and word and deed, and determine whether it is true or false. By as much as a man honestly applies that test to his own heart, and his relations with his fellows, by so much will his life be happy, stable and true.

Adversity is a true test of friendship.

Fear of death is more fearsome than death.
